

European Union Academic Programme Hong Kong (EUAP)

Research Assistant Professor

The EUAP is a consortium of four universities in Hong Kong (Hong Kong Baptist University, The University of Hong Kong, The Chinese University of Hong Kong and Lingnan University), co-financed by the European Commission. It is designed to strengthen EU-Hong Kong relations through academic work and enhance the understanding of the EU in Asia. It cooperates closely with the diplomatic representatives of the EU and EU member states as well as European chambers of commerce and a large number of institutions in Europe.

The EUAP now seeks outstanding applicants for a Research Assistant Professorship, which is created and funded as part of an overall strategy to strengthen research and teaching in current European Union affairs. The position is suitable in particular for younger researchers who would like to gain more experience in the public and academic discourse between the EU and the greater China region. Applicants should hold a PhD in political science, economics or another social science-related discipline and currently work on topics of European Union developments, preferably with an emphasis on 'Europe 2020' strategies.

The appointee will have some teaching experience already and/or have worked for European institutions. In addition to research, he/she should be able to teach one advanced (undergraduate) course on current issues of European politics / the political economy of the European Union on the undergraduate level and be able to draft ad hoc working papers or briefs about EU policy decisions. He/she will also be expected to contribute to the EUAP outreach programme by communicating and interpreting current EU affairs to selected target audiences in Hong Kong (academic and professional).

The position will be available 1 September 2013 for one year. Salary will be in line with the University's common rates for Research Assistant Professorships.
